

There are many vending machines on the UofSC campus, but no way to know where they all are unless by memory.

Core:

There are quite a few vending machines on the UofSC campus, but many may only know of a few depending on where they most often visit on campus. The problem arises when they may be in a new part of campus they may not have visited before and want a drink or snack, or maybe they've never paid much attention but now they're hungry and or thirsty they find themselves looking for one.

Context:

- Knowledge of vending machines is often acquired through personal experience
- Some students don't take note of or look for vending machines until necessary
- Newer students may want to find vending machines but aren't familiar with campus

Impact:

Some might spend too much time looking for vending machines causing them to run out of time between classes and possibly never find a machine to quench their thirst.

Possible Solution:

Perhaps this problem could be addressed through some sort of application or program that allows users to view UofSC Vending Locations.
